Fingerpicking is a technique that involves using your fingers to pluck the strings of the ukulele, rather than using a pick. This technique allows for a more delicate and nuanced sound, and it is perfect for playing airs and ballads.

The British Isles are home to a rich tradition of airs and ballads, which are often passed down from generation to generation. These songs are typically simple in structure and melody, and they often tell stories of love, loss, and longing.

In this article, we will explore some of the most beautiful airs and ballads of the British Isles, and we will provide you with easy-to-follow instructions and video tutorials on how to play them on the ukulele.

Getting Started

Before you begin learning to play ukulele picking tunes, it is important to have a basic understanding of the instrument and its tuning. The ukulele is typically tuned to GCEA, from lowest to highest string.

To play a ukulele picking tune, you will need to use your thumb, index finger, and middle finger to pluck the strings. The thumb will typically play the bass notes, while the index finger and middle finger will play the melody notes.
